Her Quintuplets Starved to Death 40 Years Ago

78-Year-Old Mother Tells How Her Brood of Five Arrived—Way Back in '96

She was selected to tell the story of Mrs. Lyon, who was 78 years old, and who was one of the last survivors of the famous five babies born in Kentucky 40 years ago. Mrs. Lyon was in bed only eight months when the babies were born and was eight months when the babies were born. She was in bed only eight months when the babies were born and was eight months when the babies were born.

There were five boys weighing from four to five pounds. I knew oil and pass 'em over to ma. I re-at them. I said, 'Give 'em to me.'

That night, I sent Claude—he was the eldest in a 30-acre tobacco farm near Mayfield, Ky. The babies went on. When Mrs. Lyon had her dream it was at a time when men and women lived on the farm. When Mrs. Lyon and her husband, Oscar, moved to their home.

Tight.
